“There’s no end to the downward spiral of U.S.-China relations with the vibe between the world’s two largest economies seeming to plumb new depths with each news cycle. President Donald Trump plans to announce new policies toward Beijing within hours, saying Thursday that “we are not happy with China. We are not happy with what’s happened.”

“The euro area’s inflation rate fell to the lowest level in four years, adding to reasons for the European Central Bank to expand monetary stimulus. With prices growing next to nothing and the economy deep in recession, economists surveyed by Bloomberg predict the ECB will step up emergency asset purchases next week to rekindle growth. Most respondents expects a top-up of 500 billion euros ($550 billion) that would take purchases under all plans this year to 1.6 trillion euros.”
